

Pure architecture is a crystal. When it is pure, it is clear like a crystal – magic, closed, exclusive, autonomous, unsullied, absolute, conclusive like a crystal. That can be a cube, a rectangular block, a pyramid, an obelisk, and a tower – finite standing shapes. Architecture refuses unfinished shapes ... Architecture begins and ends. Architecture stands.

Gio Ponti

The photographs are presented in the order the buildings were completed.

1.

155.
Hallgrímskirkja, Reykjavík, Iceland
Gudjón Samuelsson

155.

